PrintKit

License Types

Printer Licenses

Printer-based licenses allow you to use the PrintKit software for printing to a specified number of printers. This means the software may be used by any number of people on any number of computer systems, as long as all use is limited to no more than the specified number of different printers.

Printer-based licenses are available with one, five, and fifty printer limits.

Server License

A server-based license allows you to use the PrintKit software for printing from a single computer system. This means the software may be used by any number of people for printing to any number of printers, as long as all print queues controlled by the software are on the same system.

You may place a backup copy of the software on a second system for use when the licensed system is unavailable, but this backup copy must not be used at the same time as your primary copy.
